Mark Shuket, president of Old World Provisions, Albany, New York, was elected president of the North American Meat Processors Association during the trade organization's 65th Annual Convention today in Tucson, Arizona.

Shuket, in accepting the year long position, said "The meat industry is facing many challenges today and NAMP is an organization well-suited to meeting those challenges. I'm honored at being asked to take on this responsibility, and I plan to work hard to further the goals and enhance the reputation of an organization whose members are center of the plate specialists in the U.S. and Canada."

Old World Provisions has been in the business of manufacturing authentic New York Style corned beef and pastrami under the New York State National brand for over 25 years. Starting as a small processor that handled New York City delicatessens, the company now has a national presence offering a full line of authentic New York deli products.
